Training for independence

Martin Keeping

Martin was born with a physical disability and a mild learning difficulty. He attended full time education at Linwood school, he then went on to Brockenhurst college to further his skills. Martin joined The CRUMBS Project in 2006 as a trainee. During his training he started part-time work with us as a cleaner, following on from that and on the completion of his training we employed him as a Snakpak Assistant.

Martin has overcome many challenges and made impressive progress in the 9 years he has been with CRUMBS. This young man has gone from a shy and nervous trainee to confident member of staff who now trains other trainees. Martin is a dedicated hard working individual with a wonderful sense of humour.

“ I have made many friends at Crumbs, my confidence and skill set has excelled. I enjoy my job at CRUMBS and the challenges it brings. I love working and feeling useful, I will not let my disability get in the way. I now train others with disabilities, helping them to improve their lives just as mine has. ”
